UTSAV-FESTIVALS OF INDIA (PRE-PRIMARY ANNUAL DAY)

Annual day, the day that each child relentlessly practises for, the show that every parent eagerly awaits for, was show-cased under the theme UTSAV... Festivals of India highlighted the importance of each festival along with the vibrancy of festivities. Our respected Prime minister Mr Narendra Modi, enacted by our little one from Nursery took us through a journey into the culture of some of the festivals of India.

UTSAV showcased the purity of Pongal, the masti of Holi, the balle balle of Baisakhi, the kathakali danced through Onam, the tap tap bamboo rhythm of Chapchar Kut, the kaleidoscope of Kashmir, the dhamaka of Diwali, the josh of dahi-handi during Janmashtami, the soul-stirring Ganesh arti finally culminating in the divinity of Dasera. The highlight of the evening was the Mysore procession brought ahead right here in the NHPS quadrangle. It was an evening that the parents and students will always remember.

FUN WORLD - A TIME TO REMEMBER!

On 28th November, the students of Grade V went on an exciting trip to Fun World. At around 9:30 am, we left school on a very long journey but we were all too excited! When we reached there, everyone started screaming with joy. There was a guide for each class who took us to the rides. We went on many rides which we had never gone on before, including the Loop Roller Coaster which goes upside down. On the Palace Eye, a huge Giant Wheel, everyone started screaming as we went higher and higher. We also went on the Tora-Tora, Columbus, Swing Chair, Matterhorn, Space Vehicle and Techno Jump. We quickly ate our lunch as we were very hungry. Our teachers reminded us that we must clear all the garbage by putting them in dustbins. We left at around 1:45 pm to reach school early. Our parents picked us up and we narrated to them what we all did in Fun World. Our trip to Fun World was a thrilling and memorable journey that was really out of this world!

AIKYAM - UNITY IN DIVERSITY

The Annual Day for the senior division was an eagerly awaited event for parents and children alike that took place on the 13th and 14th of December 2019. The event was named Aikyam, which means 'unity' in Sanskrit. Students were dressed in various costumes native to different parts of India. This showcased unity in diversity of a proud country.

Preparations began a few days prior to the big day. Choreographers had tirelessly trained the students with dedication which bore fruit on the day of the event. The teachers had put in an equal amount of effort. The costumes were all vibrantly colored with every design imaginable. Brigadier PVR Nair was invited on the 13th of December as Chief Guest for the first day and Ms Pratima Jagadish for the second day.

The atmosphere was electric as students scampered excitedly into their allotted classrooms. Parents arrived early to watch their children shine on the stage. As it was time, the lighting of the lamp was followed by the Principal and the Chief guest's motivational speech. The tenth graders inaugurated the event by performing a marvelous dance, followed by classical dances. Every student outshone their teacher's expectations. The dances were energetic and varied, ranging from Punjab's Bhangra to Kerala's Mohiniattam and from Gujarat's Garba to Manipur's Manipuri. A patriotic dance ignited the feeling of pride in everyone's hearts.

The amazing evening was brought to an end with the Grand Finale, where students from all the dances danced together, depicting 'Unity in Diversity'. The choreographers came together and the school lit up with all the students performing on the stage as well as the corridors. It was a sight worth watching. Annual Day for the year 2019-20 was definitely a grand success.

WINGS AND HALOS

Her wings splay wide behind her as she weaves expertly through the bloodshed, slaying demon after demon with her scythe. Her halo burns bright, blinding her enemies as she cuts them down with all her might. Her silvery hair billows around her, mimicking her halo. Her bright yellow eyes shine, the anger of many planets rolling beneath. Her armour glistens, not a speck of blood tainting it, the green metal protecting her as she fights.

She is a warrior of all things pure.

She is the harbinger of light.

Her name is Sariel, and she is the angel of destruction.

She fights, for children's first steps, for the kisses mothers give their sleeping children, for the laughs of loved ones, for the mischievous smirks of siblings, the music played by the dreamers, and the love shared and lost in this world and many others. But most importantly, she fights for humankind itself.

And in that moment, it's just her against the world, cutting down anyone that dared stray into her path. She went through most of the demons, leaving bleeding bodies in her wake. A greenish haze surrounded her as she whizzed around, dodging enemy attacks with ease. Then, rain poured down on the battlefield, as if even the gods knew victory was hers. She was unfazed by it, but the demons were weakened further.

Her immortality didn't matter to her at all, she thought. Her brothers and sisters' bodies still lay warm on the ground, nowhere for their spirits to even go. After all, she thought, if nobody knows you're alive, you truly aren't.

The last of the demons charged at her with wild abandon. Arms flailing, legs kicking, eyes brimming with bloodlust. They went down instantly. The rain pattered on their bodies, slowly, surely, washing the blood away.

Whether it was the rain or her tears blurring her vision, she didn't know. She gazed emptily at the field before her, before she breaks into a sprint. Her tears merge with humourless laughter at her predicament. She takes her victory lap, and when she finally finishes, she lets out one heartbroken sob and falls to her knees. Her majestic green wings shudder as she wraps them around herself. Her body shakes uncontrollably as she wails out the names of all her brothers and sisters, every single one having gone down fighting. But only she knows of their sacrifice. Who would be left to write about them in history books? Who would write about her?

The last name dies on her lips, as she lifts her scythe high above her head. And she whispers one final name before bringing it down, plunging it into her chest, with such force that she pierces even her armour. And with a roar worthy of a god, she falls. A small smile plays on her lips. Oh, she knows the gods have witnessed her death. And all she hopes for, in her dying moments, is that they don't let it go in vain.

NIGHT BLOOMING JASMINE

The night-blooming jasmine (Cestrum nocturnum) is aptly named because its white-yellow, tubular flowers bloom at night; the flowers close during the day. It belongs to the Solanaceae family, also known as the nightshade or potato family of plants. It is known for its scent and is quite possibly the strongest scented plant in the world. When in bloom, the flowers release a scent of sweet perfume that pervades the area within 300-500ft of the plant. It is a sub-tropical plant that was first discovered growing in the West Indies and was quite possibly brought to Europe by Christopher Columbus. Cestrum nocturnum is an evergreen woody shrub. The cascading clusters of tiny tubular flowers are cream colored - not particularly showy but they pack a wallop of scent when they open at dusk.
