THE 2ND EDITION OF THE ANNUAL CAREER COUNSELLING AND GUIDANCE SESSION

John Tarnoff said, "The job you seek isn't out there in some job description, it's already inside you, aching to get out." The role of career counsellors is to bring it out.

Career counselling is essential for identifying the real potential and for guiding students towards the right career path. Right guidance before they choose an academic stream post tenth grade is of supreme value. Career counselling is helpful to choose a career goal. This helps the students plan for it and thus, directs them towards the path that they need to take. The 2nd edition of the Annual Career Counselling and Guidance Session 'Insight-Endless Opportunities' was organised by New Horizon Public School. This includes a psychometric test, group discussion and one-on-one counselling sessions to assist the students discover their true calling.

Psychometric tests are conducted to analyse a student's personality through questionnaires, handwriting and signature analysis. It assesses one's skills, interests, hobbies, intelligence quotient, emotional quotient and aptitude. Attending one-on-one career counselling sessions helps the students explore various options and removes myths regarding career options. It also provides comprehensive knowledge which helps them in decision making and grooming of one's personality for the job world. It is also a platform where individual questions are addressed. Knowledge is empowerment and the school plays an important role in providing career counselling sessions to the students and their parents. Group counselling sessions motivate students to think in the right direction and with the help of individual counselling and psychological assessment, students become aware of their interests, abilities and personality and are therefore, in a better position to plan their future.

We were privileged to have a panel of the industry's best counsellors to guide our students through these steps to help them discover their true calling. Their own story of failures and accomplishments and how they made it, is truly an inspiration.

FUN FRIDAY

New Horizon Public School has set the benchmark for conducting activities in such a way that the students not only enjoy but also learn a great deal from it. With the same perspective in view, 'Fun Friday' was organized on 28th August, 2020. An online platform, for the first time ever was created, to encourage students to participate in cultural activities and showcase their hidden talents, which included activities like dancing, singing, recitation, playing instruments etc.

'Fun Friday' turned out to be Super Fun Friday. The overwhelming response from the parents and children, the enthusiasm shown, the talents showcased, the creativity used to write poems, penning down of songs, the variety of instruments played by different children, left the teachers speechless. The squeals of laughter and cheering claps was like a breath of fresh air in the midst of the lockdown, which gladdened the hearts of all. Indeed, the ongoing pandemic did not dampen the spirits of anyone.

Fun Friday ended with a demand by the children – Dil Mange More! The teachers promised on a zestful note that more would be coming their way!

SINGING COMPETITION – UKG 3rd September

Awareness of tunes and memorizing lyrics are surely not easy tasks for a pre-primary child. However, being a part of this competition, eased out all possible doubts.

On 3rd September 2020, an online Singing Competition was conducted for the little ones of UKG. Selection of the song, training and practice with the correct rhythm, and the fluency in singing the entire song, made this competition a delight in every sense. Soft little voices singing songs with the correct melody and without any musical instrument was magic to the ears. More than 90% of the students participated, which truly reflected the enthusiasm of the parents too. Kudos to our little ones and a big cheer to all the parents.

RAINDROPS

Raindrops are magic, raindrops are fun
Oh, when they fall, they just stun!
Every drop gives us happiness
And Nature seems to smile.
During monsoon, hear their whispering songs
As to the earth, they fall
Making the soil smell fresh
Spreading happiness all around
Watering plants in a way of their own
Trees in their presence, happily dwell
Accompanied sometimes, they are
By thunder, lightning and storms
Strong enough to uproot the ground.
Oh, raindrops are magic!
To show, they will soon be back
When they say goodbye
They leave behind a sign
Together with sunshine
In an arc, they form a stunning rainbow
Above the earth, slowly growing
From rain to sunshine, to the bow
Oh, what beauty this does show!

I admire you each day, and I just want to say,
As a teacher, you are number one!

ONAM Pre-Primary 31st August

India is a land of festivals, and the celebration of each festival is unique and special in its own way. A revival of history makes our children aware of the past stories of our ancestors and the significance of each festival.

Traditionally dressed on 31st August, the Pre-Primary children brought out the festive spirit of Onam, at the onset of the class. The story of King Mahabali was told to the children. Information about Pookalam, the intricate arrangement of flowers; and the various traditional dance forms of Kerala like Pulikali and Kaikottikali or Thiruvathirakali was given to the children, in an interesting way. 'Onam Sadhya' ensured that the children understood the importance behind the celebration of Onam.

As part of the festive activity, the children of Nursery created a tiger mask, in tandem with Pulikali, and the children of LKG and UKG made beautiful pookalams (flower rangoli).

How can a day of festive celebration be complete without prasadam? Children enjoyed their payassam and banana chips, which thus ended a day of festivity in its true essence.

WATER CONSERVATION

Water conservation is saving water.
We should not waste water because it is very important for us.
This is a water conservation model.
In this model, waste water from the kitchen and rainwater is collected in a big tank.
It passes through pebbles, sand filters and made clean.
Then, this recycled water is used for watering the gardens in our apartments. It is also used for washing cars.

NOT MISSING THE ROLLER COASTER RIDE IN THE UNIVERSAL STUDIOS

Three years ago, my family and I went to Singapore. One day, we went to Universal Studios in Sentosa Island. There were many rides but the ride that caught my attention was the Transformers, The Ride: The Ultimate 3D Battle.

I love transformers, and I really wanted to try that ride. However, we decided to go on the big white roller coaster, which looked scary. We stood in the queue; seconds turned into minutes, minutes turned into hours, hours turned into days, or so it felt. The queue seemed never-ending. The place was beautiful, and we saw replicas of transformers. I was the only child in the crowd. I wondered if it was the right queue for the big white roller coaster. The queue just never ended; we left it as we were tired of waiting. If we had just stayed for another minute, we would have been on the ride.

Later, when we came back from Universal Studios, I found out that the queue that we had been standing in was not the white roller coaster but Transformers, The Ride: The Ultimate 3D Battle. If I could change one event in my life, I would have stayed in the queue for the Transformers, the Ride: The Ultimate 3D Battle.

TO AVOID BEING HURT

When I was five-years-old, my mother used to take me to the nearby park every evening. One day, while playing on a boulder, I slipped and fell on a sharp stone. I was in a lot of pain as my forehead was bleeding; I cried a lot. My mother panicked and informed my father. After my father reached, I was rushed to the hospital. The doctor checked my wound, and then, I was given five stitches on my forehead. Every alternate day, we used to go to the hospital to change the bandages. This continued for three months. I was relieved when my stitches were finally removed by the doctor.

Even today, the scar remains on my forehead. It was a very painful experience which I can never forget. If I had a chance to redo any moment in my life, I would have avoided the boulder and I would have been more careful that evening, in the park.

From this incident, I learnt to avoid doing things that could harm me. We can hurt ourselves as well as others due to our actions. In our day-to-day life, we need to be careful about the decisions we make and the steps we take.

THE PHOTOGRAPH

Karen was a nine-year-old girl. She lived in Kerala along the Malabar coast with her grandmother, her only known living relation. She loved her grandmother with all her heart. Her grandmother never forbade her from doing anything except entering the attic of the house.

Karen lost both her parents at a very young age, and from then, her grandmother meant the world to her. Every time Karen asked about her parents' death, her grandmother told her that they had died due to a deadly disease that spread in their village the same year she was born. Karen's grandmother owned a bakery. Their only source of income was from the bakery and the pension they received as her grandfather was a government official. Karen attended Army Public School. She wondered why she studied there although none of her family members worked in the Army.

One day, an activity in class required all the children to come up one by one and narrate an anecdote about a family member who was in the Army. When it was Karen's turn, she had nothing. She felt very embarrassed and angrily approached her grandmother. She started storming her with questions. Her grandmother furious for the very first time told Karen to stop demanding answers.

Karen had never heard her grandmother speak to her that way before. She was speechless and left the room in tears. The attic was the only room on the third floor. The next day, when she got home from school, her grandmother was not around. A thought crossed her mind. She knew that the attic was a forbidden place, but the anger that she felt, led her there. She was determined to find out why it was a forbidden place. When she entered, she saw many boxes covered in dust.

One of the boxes lying in a far corner grabbed her attention. When she opened it, she found a lot of photos. She picked up one of them. In the photograph, was a man and a woman dressed in uniforms and behind it read 'General Joseph Xavier' and 'Lieutenant Rose Xavier'. She picked up another one and saw the same couple with a baby in their hands and behind it read 'Our first photograph with our princess, Karen Xavier. We hope she grows up to be like us.' That one photograph explained it all. One photograph changed her life.

MY FIRST DAY AT SCHOOL

I would like to redo a lot of things in my life. One of them would be my first day at school.

I would love to go back to Pre-Primary. I loved the joy and love that I received from my sweet teachers. I was three years old when I joined school, in 2010. As a child, the first day of my school was something that I did not want because I would be away from my mother for a while and would be entering an all-new world I was not familiar with. A world of uncertainty and ambiguity. I realized how wrong I was when I entered the school and saw the smiles of all the teachers who were waiting to welcome the children.

Initially, before going to school, a whole lot of discussion took place at home by my parents and grandparents about what a school is and how I would enjoy going to school. So, as a child, I imagined the whole scenario and was all set to enter the new world.

As I entered the gate, a cold chill ran down my spine. I caught hold of my mom's clothes and started crying. My new teachers were kind enough to let my mom accompany me till the sand pit. She sat with me and convinced me to be a good child and go in.

I was firm enough to tell her that I would not go in and held on to her clothes so tight that I almost tore it.

All my teachers laughed at me as it seemed that they had seen a lot of such incidents. Then they took me inside. A teacher carried me in her arms and showered so much love on me that I felt safe. Soon I reached my class, 'NURSERY C'. It looked like a fantasy world, A WONDERLAND with many colourful things that included toys and games. I loved the first day at school. I miss it immensely!

THE COORG TRIP WITH MY FAMILY

My family and I went on a road trip from Bangalore to Coorg last September. Coorg is a beautiful place. That day we were blessed with wonderful weather. There was a light drizzle and the plants displayed their natural beauty.

We went in a van to see the coffee plantation of Coorg. A tour guide accompanied us in the van. I had a blinding headache, and was very grumpy throughout the trip. Although it was a very informative trip, I was not able to understand much because of my severe headache.

I wish I could take the trip again but without any headache! It was an exotic experience for my family, and I could have enjoyed it too. If I could redo an event in my life, it would be the Coorg trip with my family.

MY TENTH BIRTHDAY

A day that I'd love to experience again would be my tenth birthday which was on the twenty-ninth of March, this year.

Whenever a person thinks of birthday celebrations, the thought of cakes, gifts, burgers, decorations, and most importantly being able to celebrate the parties with close friends come to the mind. These same thoughts flashed across my mind before my tenth birthday. However, all my hopes were shattered when the government announced a total lockdown from the twenty-fourth of March due to COVID-19.

As my birthday was nearing, I was not at all excited as I knew that none of my friends would be invited. My parents tried their best to make me happy on my birthday by giving me gifts. My mother prepared a sumptuous lunch and also gave me the laptop to watch the movie 'Frozen'. My birthday was not bad after all. What I really missed was the celebrations with my friends.

I GET A MONTHLY ALLOWANCE AND I USE IT TO BUY COINS

I receive a monthly allowance from my father. I use the money to buy old and distinct coins. Sometimes, I also buy rare stamps. I have a scrapbook for the coins and stamps that I have collected so far. Initially, I was not interested in collecting these. One day, as I was rummaging through a drawer, I found a purse which contained the coins my father used when he was in Japan. It was unique and it caught my attention. Then, I browsed the internet for information on the coins. I found various articles related to the history of the coin and its creation. This intrigued me, and I developed a new love for coins. Since then, I have been collecting coins. I also gather information about their history too. It has become one of my most interesting hobbies.

THE MUN NINJAS!

MUN or Model United Nations is an event set up to be like a real UN conference. There are different committees (e.g. UNSC, UNGA) and each committee has its own set of delegates representing different countries like India, Germany, etc. The purpose of this is to solve an existing world problem which is in the form of an agenda such as 'resolving the long-standing border disputes between India and China' or 'defining measures to stop the massive influx of refugees into Europe'. A committee consists of delegates, and each delegate represents the country allotted to him/her. The main task of these delegates is to solve the problem given, discuss the agenda in detail, and work harmoniously with other delegates. The main way a delegate communicates is through speeches. The first speech in MUN is always the General Speakers' List (GSL) and during the course moderated caucuses are also held. In moderated caucuses, a subtopic of the agenda is discussed. If the agenda is 'defining measures to stop the massive influx of refugees into Europe', a moderated caucus topic could be 'problems caused by the massive influx of refugees into Europe'. There are also unmoderated caucuses where delegates can discuss topics informally with each other. One of the most important things to be followed by a delegate in MUN is to maintain one's foreign policy. All the delegates must come together to write the working paper/draft resolution in which all the solutions to the problem are noted. A MUN is an extremely formal session.

Recently, an online MUN was held on the 27th of September. The theme was 'Health, Healing and Humanity'. There were different committees related to the same such as the United Nations Office of Drug and Crime, WHO, and ECOSOC, with agendas like 'defining measures against crimes caused by legalizing organ trade'. The participation of the committee members was phenomenal and the speeches were remarkable. It was exceptional to witness how the three committees that were suddenly combined worked together unanimously to solve certain crisis-like situations introduced by the Chairperson with existing agendas. The committee came up with an amazing working paper which really impressed the Chairperson and the paper was passed. Everyone who witnessed this event thoroughly enjoyed it and lauded the committee. The event turned out to be a grand success.
